EXECUTIVE COUNCIL OF LEAGUE WILL ORGANIZE FRIDAY

There Will Only be Eight Members of the Council U. S. Not Being Represented

List of Members of the Council Given Below-- Commission for Danzig First Business

(By United Press)

Paris, Jan. 12.—The executive council of the league of nations will be organized Friday at 10:30 o'clock a. m., it was learned today. Because of the failure of the United States to become a member of the league the council will have only eight members instead of nine as originally planned.

The delegation includes: France—Senator Leon Bourgeois, Great Britain—Earl Curzon of Kedleston, Italy—Vittorio Scialoja, foreign minister.

Japan—Baron Matsui, Belgium—Senator Lafontaine, Greece—M. Politis.

The Spanish and Brazilian delegation has not yet been named. Spain, Brazil, Belgium and Greece have been appointed to represent the interest of all smaller nations.

The council's first action, it was said, will be to organize an administrative commission for the Danzig and Saar areas.

Solution of the Fiume situation by the conference of allied leaders here was confidently expected to be reached by Wednesday.

An agreement by that time is essential so Premier Nitti may return to Italy with projects accepted by the Italian government it was said.

Italy, in the opinion of the peace conference leaders, will not enter into the Anglo-French, Italian alliance until the Fiume situation has been disposed of.

The new alliance, it was understood, is bound by recently created inter-allied military body, of which Marshal Foch will be head. This body Saturday replaces the inter-allied grand general headquarters.

President Will Issue Call for First Meeting

Washington, Jan. 12.—President Wilson today will issue the formal call for the first meeting of the league of nations to be held next Friday, it was stated, at the state department.

In calling the meeting the President will be acting as an individual official and former member of the peace conference, it was explained. He could not issue a call as chief executive of the United States, since this country is not a member of the league of nations.

Returned Service Man Captures Men Who Shot Him

Yankton, S. D., Jan. 12.—France was not like the sheriff at Centerville according to Olaf Korp, returned service man. Korp was shot in the arm and leg by two alleged boot leggers, but with the aid of citizens he captured them. Both were held for trial. They are John Bents and John Blomhardt. The automobile in which they were driving may be taken under the law.

Arguments Presented in New Trial

Democratic Senators Meet to Effect Compromise Reservation

Meet at Residence of Senator Owen and Decide to Secure Compromise if Possible

(By United Press)

Washington, Jan. 12.—Renewed effort to bring about treaty compromise with interpretative reservations that President Wilson will accept was foreseen today when it became known that twenty democratic senators met at midnight at the residence of Senator Owen of Oklahoma and resolved to do everything possible to bring about quick ratification.

Senators present at the meeting included Hitchcock, administration leader in the treaty fight; Underwood, candidate for democratic leadership; Hoke Smith, of Georgia, and McKellar and Kendrick who recently drew up a set of democratic reservations as a basis of compromise.

The meeting was called a few hours after Senator Lodge made a move to ascertain how many democrats would follow the advice of W. J. Bryan and accept any kind of compromise. In the maneuver Lodge demanded that democrat leaders inform him how many democrats would vote for the McKellar-Kendrick reservation which was based on the Lodge reservation which President Wilson refused to accept. Owen then invited democrats to his house to talk it over. The result was that those present, including administration spokesmen, agreed to make every effort to obtain a compromise on the basis of interpretative reservations which President Wilson would accept.

No program of reservations was drafted at the meeting, but senators determined to go ahead and try to get a compromise on the basis of interpretative reservations acceptable to the President.

Treaty Situation Improved

The treaty situation looks better than it has for several months it was said today. There was no disposition to be concerned over the meeting of senators last night at Senator Owen's residence. The meeting was not considered breaking away from the president's leadership, it was said.

Democrats Will Support Reasonable Reservations

Senator Lodge's demand for a democratic "show down" on a treaty compromise was answered today when word was sent him through republican mild reservationists that a "substantial number of democrats, more than twenty in all, will support reasonable reservations that do not scuttle the treaty."

Lodge, on Saturday demanded before any further consideration be given democrat compromise proposals some definite assurance be given him concerning the number of democrats voting, behind the proposals.

Accordingly, Senator Owen called a conference of democrats at his home Sunday night. Twenty democrats attended, including Hitchcock and others. The result of this conference as set forth today by senators who attended were:

All the democrats at the conference were on record in favor of treaty ratification, as reasonable reservations of the kind President Wilson described as "interpretative."

Democrats have not yet agreed upon a definite program. The Kendrick-McKellar reservations are not acceptable to all.

It was the unanimous view that President Wilson does not want the treaty taken into the campaign any more than Wm. J. Bryan does. If the senate will add a reservation showing the United States is friendly and not antagonistic toward the league of nations, he will accept them.

There was no suggestion of revolt against President Wilson's leadership and no disposition to follow Bryan. Hitchcock said that "any suggestion of revolt against President Wilson is absurd and there are no more than three democrats who would join any such movement."

President Confers With Secy Glass

(By United Press)

Washington, Jan. 12.—Secretary of the Treasury Glass, today held a short conference with President Wilson. It is understood that the appointment of a successor to Glass, who resigns from the cabinet in January, to become senator from Virginia, was discussed. ## President Poincare Asking Crippled Poilu Whether He Is Being Properly Cared For While making a recent tour of the districts in France devastated during the war, President Poincare in the town of Fumay came upon an invalided poilu who had lost both legs. The president halted his party, removed his hat and while shaking hands with the wounded soldier asked him when and where he sustained his injuries. M. Poincare then inquired as to whether proper provision had been made for him and asked the former soldier to inform him personally if at any time he needed assistance.

Great Suffering In Mexican Earthquake Zone

By RALPH TURNER
(United Press Correspondent)

A new earthquake in the vicinity of Cosatlan, Vera Cruz, today was reported to have killed more than a hundred persons.

A message from the government of Puebla and from refugees reaching here reported that six villages on the slope of Mount Orzaba disappeared in the earthquake.

The minister of war has sent an ultimatum to rebels plundering in the devastated area, that unless they cease to harass the relief parties and cooperate with the workers there, he will order a concentration of federal troops against them.

Mexico City, Jan. 11, (night).—Disturbances in the earthquake and volcano district in Vera Cruz appeared to be subsiding according to dispatches tonight. The work of relief now is well under way. Stories of the greatest sufferings were brought here by relief workers and refugees. At Barranca Nueva advices said the upheaval opened a great gap in the earth. One house containing several people dropped to the bottom of the fissure and survivors above could hear the cries of those imprisoned below. Food was lowered to them by ropes. Excavation of ruins by soldiers has revealed scores of additional dead.

Parliament of Industries

By RAYMOND CLAPPER

(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Washington, Jan. 12.—"A Parliament of Industries" to assist congress in dealing with the prohibition of capital and labor is to be proposed in a bill now being drafted and shortly to be introduced in the senate it was learned today.

The plan was conceived some time ago but held pending the outcome of the first and second industrial conference called by President Wilson. It was to be presented as soon as details could be worked out.

The idea calls for a general industrial parliament to draw up a code for future legislation recommended to congress by the industrial body. A tentative plan is for one hundred labor members to be chosen by unions and other groups of employees. One hundred representatives of capital to include business and probably professional men. A third group will probably be added to represent the public consisting of fifty or a hundred. This has not yet been worked out definitely it was said.

It is based on a theory that the industrial congress will be a melting pot of all ideas of capital and labor.

Discovery of Asphalt.

Asphalt, with which so many roads are paved, was found by accident. For a century in Switzerland natural rock asphalt was used to extract the rich stores of bitumen it contained. It was noticed that pieces which fell from the wagons and were crushed by the wheels formed a marvelously fine road and this led to its adoption as a road material.

RICH IN TRADITION

White House Replete With Tender Human Memories.

Associations Dear to the Heart of Every American Cling About the Historic Home of the Chief Executive.

When President Wilson, because of his illness, received the king of the Belgians while propped up in bed, with a torn sweater about his shoulders, and told the prince of Wales that the bed in which he lay had been occupied by Baron Renfrew, later King Edward VII, and Abraham Lincoln, he added traditions to the host that already cling about the White House. With this introduction the National Geographic society has issued a bulletin on the home of the presidents which, it says, has more tender human memories than any other public building in America. From cellar, where colored "mamies" have cooked for presidents, pies "like mother used to make," to attic, where the Roosevelt children played and romped, there are associations which range from the quaint to the sublime.

President Wilson's enforced disability recalls the premeditated negligence—worn slippers, yarn stockings and old suit—by which Jefferson sought to impress the British ambassador with American democracy when that official arrived in full official dress to present his credentials. Early morning callers on John Quincy Adams had to cool their heels until that president finished three chapters in the Bible and walked down back of the White House for a swim in the Potomac. To "drop in" at the White House evenings, quite the sociable thing to do during Jackson's terms, meant finding the chief executive before an open fire, in an old loose coat, doing duty as a smoking jacket, puffing at a long pipe with a bowl of red clay.

Every room of the White House abounds in history. The oak-paneled state dining room knows dinners of the homely sort that Jefferson gave when the Washington village butcher brought along his son, because he heard there was to be an extra place at the table; of the picturesque kind, like one given more than a century ago to the Tunisian ambassador, who was aggrieved because everyone would not withdraw while he smoked, his pipe, though his secretary showed his good will by ceremoniously kissing the ladies present; of the bizarre kind given by Theodore Roosevelt to cow punchers, prize fighters and distinguished men of letters, not to mention the famous one with Booker T.
Washington as a guest, and many memorable banquets, like those to Marshal Joffre and Sir Arthur Balfour, when the china set of 1,500 pieces and the famous cut glass, every piece of which is engraved with the arms of the United States, were used.

No room is better known to the public than the east room, of late years the scene of brilliant receptions and White House weddings. It, too, has memories of a cruder democracy, when all Washington flocked there to "follow about the servants who carried refreshments, seizing upon whatever they could get," and upon one occasion two "ladies" perched upon the chimney piece to get a better view of the colorful scene.

Recent discussion of gifts received by the president and Mrs. Wilson while abroad lends interest to specimens of those made to other presidents and "first ladies," which remain in the White House. The blue room contains the most famous of these, the gold mantle clock presented to Washington by Lafayette, who received it from Napoleon. In the green room is the Gobelin tapestry, made by a process which now is a lost art, and framed in gold, which the emperor of Austria gave Mrs. Grant. Near by is a lacquer cabinet, gift of Japan on the occasion of the first visit to its ports by American ships. And there are many more.

Country Women Live Longest.

The theory that city women may wear silk hose with impunity and otherwise defy winter's rigors by permitting fashion to decree how few clothes they shall wear, which was advanced by Dr. Royal S. Copeland on the claim that city women live longer than their farm-bred sisters has been given a fact.

Nothing less than the United States life tables in the 1910 census were quoted by the statistical expert of a leading life insurance company to prove that country women live longer than city women.

Country women have the call so far as expectations of life are concerned, from the moment they make their bow to the world up to the time they reach the ripe age of ninety.

Then and only then do their city sisters gain a lap in the race for long life.

State of Apprehension.

"There's no place like home" is a true and beautiful bit of song.

"Yes. But if I don't have better luck in the landerly way somebody'll have to rewrite the whole thing and make it read, 'There is no such place as home.'"

Reasonable Increase.

Australian government figures show an increase in all living costs in that commonwealth of only 46 per cent since 1914.

Listening to "Fish Stories."

Norwegian fishermen are using a species of submarine telephone to aid them in their work. A microphone is

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take a glass of Salts before breakfast
if your Back hurts or Bladder bothers you.

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

Instinct of Birds.

The circumstance of the bluebirds being emboldened by the cold, suggests the fact that the fear of man, which now seems like an instinct in the birds, is evidently an acquired trait, and foreign to them in a state of primitive nature. Every gunner has observed, to his chagrin, how wild the pigeons become after a few days of firing among them; and, to his delight, how easy it is to approach near his game in new or unfrequented woods.—J. L. W.

Newly Painted Windows.

To prevent newly-painted windows from sticking, open and run them up and down two or three times a day for three or four days. Unless this is done the windows are almost bound to stick. Always paint them as early as possible in the day so as to give them a chance to dry before you fasten them at night.

Ginger a Valuable Crop.

Ginger grown in Jamaica has always commanded more than double the price of any other. Under favorable conditions an acre will produce as much as four thousand pounds.

WOMAN'S REALM

Y. W. C. A. CALLS
BIG CONVENTION

2,000 Women Expected to Gather in Cleveland the Week of April 13-20, 1920, for National Convention.

MEETING POSTPONED
TWO YEARS BY WAR

Delegates Will Discuss New Membership Basis for Students and Question of Future Support for Work. Many Other Things.

The Young Women's Christian Association of the United States of America will meet in national convention in Cleveland, O., the week of April 13 to 20, having postponed the convention from the spring of 1918 in order to comply with a government request that expense and travel be reduced to a minimum during the war.

The department on conventions and conferences of the National Y. W. C. A., of which Mrs. Harry Emerson Fosdick is chairman, estimates an attendance of 2,000 women, representing all departments of Y. W. C. A. work—board members, secretaries, students, club girls, Girl Reserves, girls from Industrial Service Centers, women from the International Institutes for foreign born women, members from city, town and country Associations.

Each Association in the United States will be entitled to one voting delegate for every one hundred voting members in the Association.

Two of the most important questions which will come up before the convention will be the membership basis and the question of support. Of old business to be considered the most important question will be the membership basis for student associations, the granting of charter membership privilege to the Chicago Young Women's Christian Association and a recommendation providing an increase in membership of the National Board of the Association will also be presented.

Rev. Charles W. Gilkey, pastor of Hyde Park Baptist Church, Chicago, will give a series of morning addresses during the convention week. Dr. Robert E. Speer, secretary to the Foreign Mission Board of the Presbyterian Church, North, will also give an address. Mrs. Speer is chairman of the National Board of the Y. W. C. A.

The convention will be in session morning and evening, the afternoon being given over to sectional meetings held in various churches. Attendance at these meetings will be determined by group membership and also by activities.

Mrs. W. P. Harford of Omaha, Neb., will preside at the opening session, having been elected as president at the last convention of the Young Women's Christian Association, held in Los Angeles in 1915.

The committee on business to come before the convention has for its chairwoman Mrs. John French and includes among its members Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Miss Eliza Butler, sister of Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University; Miss Martha McCook, Miss Mabel Cratty, general secretary for the National Board of the Y. W. C. A., and Mrs. William Adams Brown, all of New York city.

CATCHY ARRAY OF RIBBONS

Striking New Decorations Include Metallic Background—Strong Colors Are in Evidence.

Ribbon counters these days are fascinating. Sometimes you rather wonder whether the ribbon people have a right to claim some of the beautiful reels of silken goods that they call ribbon. You would think that if you were the people that had the silk goods counter in the store you would want to put up a light to have in your department some of those wonderful textiles that are kept on the ribbon counter. Sometimes they are almost half a yard wide. They are used often not as ribbons are, but as silk by the yard is used, to cut up into waistcoats, gilets, cuffs, collars and other trimmings of the frock.

Most of the most striking of these new ribbons have a metallic background that is woven in with brilliant colored silk that goes to make the design of the ribbon. They are the most gorgeous sort of brocade. One of these ribbons shows a design of color and metal that goes to Egypt for its inspiration. There is a gorgeous scarab and above the conventional rising sun of Egypt with the usual lotus flower design at the sides. Then there is a ribbon showing a conventionalized parrot done in the most gorgeous parrot shades combined with gold. There are others that show a curious Chinese design which as you look at it must have been inspired by the four queens of the deck of cards. Only it is entirely Chinese in execution and coloring.

These ribbons are very useful for making gilets, and dressmakers are making use of them to a great extent. For evening gowns they have a wide usefulness. You know girdles have come to the fore and sometimes these ribbons are used to form into a loose, sloppy girdle that is caught around the waist and hips.

Very narrow ribbons are also being used for girdle purposes. These are made by taking about two and a half yards of ribbon about a half inch wide, usually pleated edged. Sometimes there are three lengths all the same color, sometimes the three lengths are all of a different color—yellow, blue and old rose, perhaps. These three strands are brought loosely around the girdle line on top of the frock and then tied in a bow or crossed in a knot at the left front, leaving the ends to hang loosely at the left side. Young girls are buying these ribbons to make into girdles to add to their blue serge or black silk frocks.

His Own Medicine.

A physician stepped into a barber shop next door to his office and while waiting for his turn picked up a newspaper and started reading. After reading five minutes or more he threw the paper down and exclaimed, "Why, that paper is more than three weeks old!"

The fellow sitting next to the doctor laughed long and loudly. The doctor turned to him and said, "Well, I don't see anything funny about reading a newspaper three weeks old."

"Yes! But it's funny to see you take some of your own medicine," was the reply. "I found myself reading a magazine, two years old, in your office the other night."

Cooking Class Obeying Order "You Cooked This Dinner, Now Eat It" Before They Got Their Diplomas

"You have cooked this dinner, now eat it!" was the stern command of the chief chef at the London County Council Technical Institute to seven young women students who were being examined in practical cooking. None suffered any ill effects, and all passed their "exams."

TOWN GIRLS TO HAVE Y. W. C. A.

Association Maintains 52 Town Secretaries—Wants to Expand Work at Once.

"During the war girls all over the world had their first lesson in nation wide and world wide thinking," says Miss Mabel Head, director of Town and Country Work for the National Y. W. C. A.

"Girls learned something of the inspiration of working with hundreds and hundreds of other girls, unselfishly and unstintingly, through Red Cross work. Now the Y. W. C. A., through its world wide program of service for women, is planning to expand its work so that girls all over the world, and particularly in smaller communities, will not lose this experience.

"Citizenship forums are being organized for girls in small communities, where girls may come together to learn more about their country and their responsibility to it and as citizens of the world.

"Reading courses have been planned at National Headquarters in New York so that a girl in any community may carry on a course of study, either by herself or with other girls, on a wide variety of subjects.

"The Y. W. C. A. has at present thirty-nine secretaries doing county work. This means that they travel about from one community to another helping girls to plan out social, recreational, educational and religious activities for themselves and organizing them to carry on these activities. These secretaries work with the county agents of the Department of Agriculture in carrying on home economics work. They help plan pageants, arrange benefits, assist the girls in going to Y. W. C. A. summer conferences and help plan all sorts of social good times for the community."

"Bussa" an Eastern Intoxicant.

"Bussa," the intoxicant drink of the Africans from Egypt down to Zanzibar, is the well-known hydromel, made of honey and water. This is a northern as well as a tropical and southern drink, being much used in Russia. Pythias, the learned navigator, who lived about 300 B. C., says of it that it was the popular drink in the countries on the Baltic. It was also well known to the ancient Greeks and Romans.

Morality the Object.

The end of all political struggle is to establish morality as the basis of all legislation. "Tis not free institutions, 'tis not a democracy that is the end—no, but only the means. Morality is the object of government. We want a state of things in which crime will not pay; a state of things which allows every man the largest liberty compatible with the liberty of every other man.—Emerson.

THE JAZZ GIRL

By WILL T. AMES

(C. 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Gladys Kimball was not, to tell the truth, having quite as good a time as she had anticipated. When a girl has the satisfaction of feeling herself and her family to be the distinct superiors of everybody in a fifty-cottage summer colony; when she has the finest clothes and the most expensive canoe in the place, and when her fiancé has come to visit her and is both good-looking and very well-to-do, the stage would appear to be set for happiness. Jim had arrived in the forenoon, buoyant, flatteringly glad to be with her again, and they had had quite a wonderful day on the water, and in it.

Yet now, as they sat on the wide veranda of the Kimball cottage, with the wide cove stretching far off into the starlight night and the whippoorwills hammering away at their everlasting vocal carpet beating, Gladys was conscious of being a bit bored rather than exultantly blissful. The rhythmic cadences of an orchestra from the pavilion a furlong away added to her restlessness.

"Don't you think this is dreadfully slow?" she said. "Just sitting still and looking at nothing?"

Jim Carruthers, after an early morning start, a considerable railroad trip and his outdoor day, hadn't thought of the occasion as being "slow" in the least. He would have been content to sit there with Gladys a very long time. But he was good-tempered, was Jim, and not a little used to a certain degree of wisely restrained petulance in his fiancée's makeup. So he only said in reply:

"Well, what do you want to fly at next?"

"There's a place over there where they dance—some of the less particular of the Vale people and a crowd of all sorts that come out here from town in the evening. We wouldn't care to mingle with them, of course, but we could go over there and have an ice and look on. The music isn't so bad."

Were Sitting Together.

"All right," assented Jim; "let's go."

He was too tired to dance, anyhow, so he made no comment on Gladys' exclusiveness; though he grinned a bit under cover of the darkness.

The pavilion was broad and airy and flooded with soft light. Jim thought the "all sorts" who patronized it seemed to be a pretty decent sort, on the whole. Any way, they made a mighty interesting picture, full of color and gracious movement. Gladys chose a table from which there was a perfect view of the floor and presently, over their sundae, both were lost in the fascination of the scene.

The music changed. The tremulous, curving throbs of a classic waltz gave place to a "jazz with all the wool on," as Jim exclaimed, mostly to himself. From a settee just in front of Jim and Gladys a man and a girl arose, swung lightly into each other's arms and floated away into the crowd.

To speak of jazzers "floating" may be, ordinarily, a fantastic use of language—but not when applied to jazzers such as these. A leaf, caught in the current of a rippling, gurgling, lolly little rapid never swim more lightly with all its tremors and rockings and quiverings.

And it was as a single leaf, thrilling with the joy of its adventure, that they danced. Jim found himself suddenly very wide-awake as he watched them, almost breathless in his admiration of the superb performance.

He turned suddenly to Gladys. "Did you notice that couple who were sitting in front of us? Did you ever see anything like their dancing?"

"You mean that creature in black with the bobbed blond hair?" Gladys inquired in turn. "That's the trouble with all such public places as this. They never seem to be able, somehow, to keep them out. A really nice girl can't—"

Gladys let her sentence trail off into nothing.

Jim had a reply on his lips when there suddenly descended upon Gladys three extraordinarily gushing young boys named Burton, who had arrived at their place in the Vale only that day. The Burtons shared with the Kimballs the distinction of being the "very nicest" of the Vale colonists.

Jim thought the girls rather rude in the manner of their carrying Gladys off to see their mother, who was "outside in the limousine, you know." If he had been less easy tempered he might have resented the offhand way in which Gladys, flinging him a command to "stay here, Jimmie," disappeared in the direction of the big doorway. But he didn't appear to mind.

Twenty minutes later Gladys, returning, found another party at the table and Jim nowhere in sight. The slight indignation she felt at her fiancé's failure to "stay put" faded into wrath when, searching the pavilion with her eyes she beheld Jimmy, her own special property, jaxing, actually jaxing, and with no one in the world but the sinuous, bob-haired girl with the astonishing black gown that showed glimpses of half bosom and the girl's own white legs as she danced. Gladys stared angrily for an instant, then turned and hurried to the door in time to get a lift home in the Burtons' car.

"But I knew the girl," insisted Jimmy next morning, "and she's really quite a superior young woman. She's a professional dancer, and the man with her is her partner. They are employed by the pavilion management. The partner is married and his wife and their kids are here with him. The girl has an interesting history. Let me tell you about her."

"I shall do nothing of the kind. No decent woman would be in such a business nor dress as she does. You have mortified me beyond forgiveness publicly associating in a place like this with such an impossible creature. I am afraid you do not appreciate the obligations of the class to which I belong. Perhaps we have made a mistake in becoming engaged."

This was a sheer bluff on Gladys' part, but she felt sure of her ground with Jimmy. She was tremendously surprised, therefore, when Carruthers, with an unwonted seriousness in his countenance, answered, after a moment's silence.

"I rather think you are right, Gladys. I'll be getting my things and going."

An hour later Jim and the jazz girl were sitting together on a shaded rock at the edge of the cove. "But" protested the girl, "I hadn't the faintest

Idea, when I told you all about myself in town last winter that you ever knew Gladys.

"You don't suppose, do you, that if I'd known how things stood between you and her I'd have told you all that story about her father's treatment of mother—about the property and all? Nor that last night I would have pointed her out to you as the snob cousin I'd told you about?"

"No, Edith," responded Jimmy. "I don't. A girl who gave up college to support a whole family, the way you've done, and did it all with a laugh when she'd have given her heart's blood, almost, to go on with her painting, isn't the kind to make mischief. But on the other hand, when a girl like Gladys, whose only thought is to make a front with the money you ought to have—that's rightfully yours—pretends not to know her own cousin, and not only that but affects to despise her as a person not even respectable, why, Jimmy Carruthers, if he's going to become a relative of that girl, would a whole lot rather be her cousin by marriage than her husband."

"Nonsense, Jimmie!"

"Why nonsense?"

And to save her life Edith couldn't tell him why.

Pons Sublicius.

The first bridge built over the Tiber at Rome was the famous Sublicius. It was a wooden bridge, as its name implies, erected on piles and disappeared long ages ago, but modern Rome has erected another at the same place between the Transtevere and Testaccio quarters. This bridge was begun in 1914 and continued building through the years of war. In the year of the peace and on the day, April 21, 1919, on which the anniversary of the foundation of Rome was celebrated, the Pons Sublicius of the modern world was declared open. As befits the dignity of its name and its ancient traditions the new bridge is severe style with no ornamentation but a shield with the arms of Rome on the crown of the central arch. That it should have taken as much as five years to build is due to war conditions and the uncertain temper of the ancient stream which it spans.

DO BUSINESS IN THE OPEN

Itinerant "Merchants" in City of Mexico Flourish Exceedingly, Especially on Sundays.

Conditions in the republic which have crowded a million persons in Mexico City, or more than 300,000 above its normal population, have increased greatly the number of itinerant merchants who set up shop where their whim wills. It is impossible to find a street in the city where some vendor has not set up a stall.

A person desiring to outfit a house can buy almost everything needed without placing a foot within a regular shop. Let a prospective buyer merely hint that he is in the market for something and he is besieged immediately by a crowd of energetic salesmen, who dilate in machine-gun Spanish on the worth of their wares.

Sunday is the busiest day for these merchants. They foregather principally in the plazas, spread their goods about them and patiently wait for customers. Their numbers are augmented by men and women, boys and girls, all of them selling candies, fruits, shoe-strings, pottery, tobacco, drinks, brightly-colored ribbons, shoes, hats, dogs, cats, gophers and the dozens of varieties of food of which chili is the most important component.

The plazas present an animated appearance. Bands are playing, whistles are blowing, newsboys call their editions, a man with a wheel of chance beseeches the credulous to try their luck; a boy with a huge basket balanced atop his head offers sweetmeats at 5 centavos each, and following him comes a seller of ice cream with his frozen dainties tucked away in a container which he juggles perilously on his head but never loses a spoonful, and above all shines a glorious sun which gives no hint of brooding problems of existence.

It is a happy life the native leads on Sunday, when with a few centavos he may fill his stomach with sweets, bask in the warm sunshine and listen to music furnished by a Mexican band.

A man from the United States, who on a recent Sunday morning took his seat in a plaza, within a few minutes had his shoes shined, his nails manicured, his breakfast served, his morning newspapers delivered, his measure taken for a suit of clothes and was offered an assortment of diamonds and pearls at a bargain. He concluded that there may be more modern methods of conducting business, but none more picturesque than that employed by the outdoor merchant.

Believes in Physical Training.
Marguerite L. Smith, elected to the New York state assembly from the Nineteenth New York district, is twenty-five years old and a specialist in physical training and her election is, she believes, the natural outgrowth of the work she has been doing in her community all through the war. She will not give up her work as physical director in the Horace Mann Elementary school, where she is also supervisor of girls' clubs.

In the summer for several years Miss Smith has been director of the physical training and dancing at Camp Hanover, a girls' camp in Vermont, and has also supervised the girls' hikes through the White mountains.

When she was in a teachers' college Miss Smith was president of the athletic association for two years and received the highest individual score for athletics in her senior year.

"I never had any legislative or political plans for myself," she says. "I haven't now. But I want to keep on working for the people of my own community in whatever way I can."

No Wonder.

My, how her feet did hurt! It was now two o'clock in the afternoon and she had been tramping about all day in search of Christmas bargains. It was a balmy fall day and she couldn't lay the hurting to the weather. Her shoes were two or three months old and had never caused her distress before.

But there was no denying the aching appeal for relief from the lower extremities and she hid herself to a restroom in one of the downtown stores.

She stooped to unlace the shoes and horror of horrors! She had been walking all day with each shoe on the wrong foot.

WAR RISK LAW REVISED AGAIN

SWEET BILL HAS MADE MANY CHANGES IN INSURANCE OF FORMER SERVICE MEN.

URGED BY AMERICAN LEGION

That Organization Is Now Undertaking to Persuade Those Who Took Out Government Policies Not to Permit Them to Lapse.

By JAMES P. HORNADAY.

Washington.—Another revision of the war risk insurance law is now in effect. It was put through congress under the name of the Sweet bill. Nearly all men who served as soldiers, sailors or marines in the world war are affected by the changes that have been made in the original war risk law. One of the new provisions relates to war-term insurance, or United States government life insurance policies. Nearly every service man was persuaded to take out a life policy when he went into the war. After the armistice was signed provision was made for converting this war term insurance into peace time insurance.

Under the changes in the law that have just been made, converted policies may be made payable to any of the following list of beneficiaries: Parent, grandparent, step parent, parent through adoption, wife or husband, child, grandchild, stepchild, adopted child, brother, sister, half-brother, half-sister, brother through adoption, sister through adoption, step-brother, step-sister, uncle, aunt, nephew, niece, brother-in-law, sister-in-law, a person who has stood in relation of a parent to the insured for a period of one year or more prior to the insured's enlistment or induction, the children of such person, parent, grand-parent, step-parent, or parent through adoption of the insured's wife or husband. Another change provides that this government converted life insurance may now be paid at death in a lump sum or in installments for 36 months or more at the option of the insured.

Disability Rates Increased.
Increased rates of compensation for disability are provided in the new legislation. The following is a comparison between the amounts formerly paid under the war risk insurance act and those that are to be paid from this time on:

In case of temporary disability with neither wife nor child, formerly $30, now $40; with wife but no child, formerly $45, now $60; with wife and one child, formerly $55, now $65; with wife and two children, formerly $65, now $100; with wife and three or more children, formerly $75, now $100; with no wife but one child, formerly $40, now $60; with no wife but two children, formerly $50, now $85; with no wife but three children, formerly $60, now $100; with no wife but four children, formerly $60, now $105. No change was made in the extra allowance for dependent mother or dependent father or both which remains at $10.

Under the new law there is an allowance to a man temporarily totally disabled and with no wife living of $5 additional for each child (in excess of one) without limit as to number. Under the original war risk insurance act the same scale applied for total and permanent disability as for temporary total disability. The revised law makes a distinction between the two. The monthly compensation for total and permanent disability is fixed at $100. Under the new law if the disabled person is so helpless as to be in constant need of a nurse or attendant an additional allowance of not exceeding $20 a month is provided.

Work of American Legion.

The new law provides that for double total permanent disability the rate of compensation shall be $200 a month, and the law says that the loss of both feet or both hands and the sight of both eyes shall be deemed double total permanent disability. The changes in the law made by congress were nearly all suggested by the first convention of the American Legion which met in Minneapolis recently. A committee appointed by that meeting to call on congress came here and as a result of its activities, the Sweet bill was promptly put through. This marked the first demonstration of the influence of the Legion.

Renewed efforts to persuade service men to retain the war-time insurance are to be made. A considerable per cent of the men have permitted this insurance to lapse. In many instances, it is asserted, the men regarded it as a war insurance only, and did not even take the pains to inquire whether it would be worth while to convert it into peace-time life insurance. The war-risk insurance bureau, with the assistance of the Red Cross local organizations in various sections of the country, has done a great deal toward persuading men to retain this insurance, but in spite of all their efforts lapsed policies are still accumulating. The American Legion will now undertake to do what it can toward persuading men to hold on to the insurance. The subject is to be handled by every local branch of the legion. One of the objections to the government policy was that at the death of the insured the policy would not be paid in a lump sum. That objection, as already noted, has now been removed.

Donald Crisp, the well known director, has given these wisecracks something to scratch their heads over

The climax of the action is an earthquake, and the camera shows not the results of the disturbance, as is usually the case, but the actual "quake working in full blast. Chimneys and huge trees fall, an automobile is wrecked, whole houses collapse, and scores flee in terror.

HOW NATURE CLEANS HOUSE

Fall Rains Wash Off the Dust of Summer and Wind Sweeps It Up and Blows It Away.

We humans have a dire way of talking about the calm before a storm as though it was a brief intermission in a bitter round of evil days. As a matter of truth a calm may last sunny and serene for weeks at a time. It is the storm which merely clears the air for another calm. John Brock writes in the Kansas City Times.

If the weather is sulky and fateful, sniffling to itself in little gusts of drops or occasionally bursting into a good steady cry, it may remain unsettled for days. But when it lets itself out into a real tantrum it will hardly outlast the sunset.

The other morning trouble began to brew before sunrise. The fitful night wind stilled with the light as though it had just awakened to the fact that it had a good day's work ahead of it. For a time it hovered, as though to survey the world. It poked into odd corners, combed the long grass, took stock of all the fog ends the summer leaves behind, like a householder inspecting his premises after his tenants have departed to town for the winter.

It is really surprising, the amount of dust it found. The most careless housewife hardly dares to let her ashes and potato peelings accumulate beyond a certain point, but summer gets cluttered up with all manner of unconsidered trifles. Even such tiny things as the husks of seeds, the wings of gnats, the cast-off down of the little birds, accumulate into surprising amounts. Smaller, but still more untidy, are the molds and germs, elements of decay which have their place in the scheme of things, but must not be allowed to usurp that of their betters.

All these things the wind found. It sighed and set to work sweeping the earth with angry, vigorous blasts. And the dust rose up and filled it with stifling clouds. Like the Augean stables, here was a task nothing less than a river could wash clean. It reached out for a lowering cloud which hung far in the western sky and dumped its contents until every crack in our part of the earth's floor was running over. It seceded and rubbed and scrubbed and rubbed until it squeezed that cloud completely dry and flung it back to the highest rack of heaven until it should be fit to use again. And then it went on polishing up the world until it was fairly dry again. And while it worked its voice took on a satisfied contented sound. For this particular corner of the universe was as fresh and clean as it had been in early spring.

A Scriptural Bull.

Even the Bible is not free from bulls. In chapter thirty-seven of the book of Isaiah appears the following confusion of ideas: "Then the angel of the Lord went forth, and smote in the camp of the Assyrians, a hundred and four score and five thousand; and when they arose early in the morning, behold, they were all dead corpses."

Why Bud Is So Healthy.

An army surgeon says city men are less liable to disease than country folk because they are more used to dirt. If being accustomed to dirt is a guarantee of health henceforth we are going to let that seven-year-old rascal come to the dinner table arrayed in all his glory. The condition of his hands and face may make the rest of us sick, but so long as he is well the dirt may be on his fingers an inch thick.—Detroit Free Press.

Home Town Helps

EASY TO DRAIN FLOWER BOX

Simple Arrangement Which Will Prevent Damage to Post on Which Receptacle Is Set.

The home mechanic is often called upon to build flower boxes to place on top of newel posts, and other porch columns. To prevent rot and to maintain a good appearance, it is best to drain the flower box, as shown in the picture. The box is lined for a part of its depth with tin or zinc, and drained through a one-inch tube to the downspout, or over the edge of the porch. A triangular piece of window screen placed over the drain opening will prevent clogging of the pipe.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

BEAUTIFYING THAT BARE SPOT

Ferns Particularly Adapted for Growth in Garden Spaces That Seem So Uninviting.

There is perhaps no plant grown which appeals to the refined taste of the gardener and lover of plant life as the fern—with its wonderful grace of form and variety of color shading.

Few people realize what charming effects can be obtained at a very small cost with the aid of our native wood ferns. We admire them when they are seen in their native cool and shaded hums, but we do not realize they can easily be transplanted and will quickly contribute to the beauty of our lawns and gardens.

Ferns may be found in the woods of almost every state in the Union. Around every house, whether in city or village, there are shady spots where grass and flowers will not grow. We look at these bare and uninviting places and wish something could be done to make them attractive. Take a day off, go to the woods, and with a trowel dig up some ferns, secure as many varieties as possible, plant them in the prepared bed, the larger varieties at the back, the more delicate in front.

It does not require so many for a start, as they multiply rapidly. Keep them moist until thoroughly established. Late in the fall cover with leaves. In the spring do not remove these leaves from the bed, as they help to hold the moisture. Enrich the soil and give the ferns more of their native conditions. Thus the former unsightly spots will have become places of joy and beauty.—Thrift Magazine.

An Evil and Its Cure.

Interest in Kansas City's efforts to rid itself of the billboard nuisance will be keen in every city in the country where the citizens are awake to the importance of maintaining urban and suburban districts in a condition of tidiness and beauty. The absurdity of spending great sums of money for good highways and other public improvements, and then allowing them to be heavily discounted by the presence of glaring and unsightly signs and pictures, is too well understood and too obvious to call for detailed argument. It appears that what is chiefly needed in order to gain relief from the aggressive billboard, in any city in the United States, is definite and rigorous local action. St. Louis has met with success in this direction, now Kansas City is following in its footsteps, and many other centers might wisely fall into line.—Christian Science Monitor.

Plants Trees Along Roads.

Dr. J. E. Westlake, of Virden, Ill., has started a campaign in behalf of fruit tree planting along the public highways. He favors the planting of a fruit tree on every mile of the country roads and suggests that the Boy Scout organizations serve as guardians of the trees after they are planted. He estimates the cost for the county would be about $12,000. He has launched a similar campaign in other counties of the state.—Chicago Journal.

All Wind.

Henry Waterson, the famous editor, was talking about politicians. "Take the wind, the puff, out of a politician," he said, "and what remains?"

"A noted politician's wife was listening to her husband over the telephone. Five, ten, fifteen minutes she listened patiently. Then she said: "Excuse me, Charles. Just a moment. I want to change the receiver to the other ear. This one's so tired."

Persia a Barren Land.

A large part of Persia is absolute desert. Much of the remainder is so scantily supplied with water that it is almost empty of human life. If Persia is imagined as chiefly a rich land of rose gardens, palms and nightingales the mental picture is fanciful in the extreme. No such vision is justified, even by the poets of Persia. The Rubiyat has a good deal to say about roses, but it does not forget "the desert's dusty face" nor hide "the strip of herbage strewn" which so narrowly "divides the desert and the sown."

Pup Likes Strawberries.

I told you a little while ago about the fruitarian pup, which ate apples and bananas and pineapple, and whose owner was only waiting for the strawberry season. I hear now that the pup's passion for strawberries is almost incredible, except to those who have seen him quivering with anticipation when the fruit comes on the table. When offered a piece of meat and a strawberry, he takes the latter without any hesitation; and he does not ask for cream or sugar. Indeed, his fondness for the fruit has proved his undoing; and at present he is not only in disgrace for clambering on the table and stealing strawberries from a bowl, but he is also a little unwell.—London Express.

Dish Centuries Old.

John H. Lancaster of Knoxville has lately secured a most desirable acquisition to his collection of antiques in the form of a pewter platter. This old-fashioned household article was brought over in the Mayflower in 1620 by Martha Parker. It had belonged to her great-great-grandmother, which indicates that it was in existence five generations back of 1620. The dish is circular and measures 15 inches across. It is considerably scarred, but has borne the ravages of time exceedingly well.—Portland (Me.) Press.

POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENT

The industrial workers of the state have organized a league that they call the Working People's Political league. The purpose of this league is to see that men, who will represent the majority of the people of the state, are nominated and elected to the state offices of Minnesota next year. This league is making a great deal of progress. It is being organized all over the state. Everywhere people who have to work for a living are joining it. They are joining it because they see that one kind of government serves the big rich interests of the state. They see that if one kind of government can do that, another kind of government can serve the people of the state just as well. They want another kind of government—so they are joining this league.

On Jan. 12th 1920 representatives of this league will be in Brainerd, Minn. A great meet will be held at Gardner's hall. Everybody who works for a living in this town, and everybody who wants to see a state government that will have at heart the interests of the people of the state, should go to that meeting. You will find out there what this Working People's Political league is trying to do—how it is being organized—what it is going to do after it is fully organized—what chance it has to elect the right sort of officeholders—whether or not you can help—and, more than anything else, whether or not you care to help. Go to that meeting and find out. It is probably the most important political meeting that was ever held in this town. It means a lot to you to know whether or not you want to join in. Go to the meeting. Even if you never join this outfit, it is up to you to find out what, as a whole, it is trying to do, and what is going on in the state of Minnesota. 18243

CHAMBER COMMERCE ANNUAL MEETING

To be Held Wednesday Evening, January 14 at the Chamber of Commerce

VOTING ON NEW MEMBERS

Election of Officers to Follow—Nominations Made to Date

The annual meeting and election of the Chamber of Commerce will be held Wednesday evening, January 14 at the Chamber rooms and judging from the interest shown, this will be the most important and largely attended annual meeting in the past three years, if not in the history of the organization.

The election of officers is attracting general interest and that there will be lively but good natured competition is indicated from the following list of nominations:

President—F. H. Simpson, D. D. Schrader and A. J. Hayes.

Vice President—T. B. Brusegaard and Dr. C. G. Nordin.

Treasurer—F. A. Farrar and H. E. Kundert.

The committee on committees, made up of six men, will be selected from a list of twenty or more prominent members of the chamber who have been duly nominated.

Hour of Election

The election will be held immediately after the vote is taken on the new applications turned in by the special campaign committee under the leadership of Chairman D. D. Schrader. The lists of new members have not been officially checked up but an estimate gives the chamber over one hundred new names on the roster. Over 400 members will have signed up for the year 1920, judging from present estimates.

To Vote on Applications

The Chamber meeting will be called at 7:30 p. m. and a vote on applications taken. The annual election will follow this meeting and the polls will be kept open until 9 o'clock in order to permit all to vote. Members must be in good standing in order to vote, that is to say, must have paid up last year's membership dues. All new members will be eligible to vote as soon as their applications have been voted upon.

Judges of Election

The election will be conducted in a systematic manner and a complete list of voters taken. William Nelson, W. A. Spencer and H. L. Jones have been named judges of election. The ballot box will be in their charge and voters will give in their names as they cast their ballot.

It is hoped that every member will take advantage of the opportunity to register his choice for officers for the ensuing year.

Big Dinner Later

The Chamber dinner will not be held Wednesday night, owing to the fact that a large crowd is expected but will be given later in the month and the winning team in the membership contest will be guests of honor. This will be an "Over the Top" dinner and plans to entertain at least 300 guests will be made. A program, with speakers from out of the city, music and other entertainment is being planned. The date will be announced later.

Brainerd and Aitkin had been Billed by Mr. Lawrence, Breaking Date is Unpardonable

The basketball game between the Y. M. C. A. and Aitkin Alumni, has been cancelled because of peculiar circumstances arising from some source, not fully known to the manager of the Y. team.

The manager of the American Legion basketball team of Bemidji, notified Manager D. T. Lawrence last night that the Aitkin Alumni had cancelled their game with the Brainerd Y and Mr. Lawrence said he immediately got in touch with Mr. Scott, the manager of the Aitkin team, to know the reason, after having billed the towns of Brainerd and Aitkin, and having the arrangements all made for the game, the tickets out and over 200 sold.

Mr. Lawrence said he was at a loss to know the reason why an outside team should be so interested in trying to break up a game with another team. D. T. Lawrence says that he calls that an outrage on the part of the team that was scheduled.

DEATH IN CITY

The funeral will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the farm home.

Decision of Character.

Another advantage of this character is that it exempts from a great deal of interference and obstructive annoyance which an irascible man may be almost sure to encounter. Weakness in every form tempts arrogance, and a man may be allowed to wish for a kind of character with which stupidity and impatience may not make so free. When a firm, decisive spirit is recognized, it is curious to see how the space clears around a man, and leaves him room and freedom.

afraid that I was not able to recommend you to my friends. However, —my bill?"

"There is no bill," little Tessa answered quietly, "when a garment fails to give satisfaction."

Helen-Marie placed a bill upon the table. "It was a small recompense indeed," "That will at least pay for your time," she said and departed.

Jack's mother, descending from her automobile, met Helen-Marie at the brown house door.

"I must warn you," Helen instantly advised, "that the girl's work is impossible."

"I am coming," Mrs. Hamilton said slowly, "to make a friendly call at my son's request. He is going to marry—the girl—you see. It was love at first sight with them both, that day in the road. All Jack knew of her was the name she gave—Tessa Modiste."

Czechs Superb Artists.

As artists, the Czechs have power, imagination and superb technique. Their sketches show the pride and manhood of the Czech soldier, who has gone through all the demoralizing experiences that have ruined the Russians, but has come through clean and sound.

The Czechs are musical. To hear the marching songs of the Russian soldiers in Petrograd was inspiring. But the Czechs have more than music in their singing—they have a challenge and a promise. The Czechs sing as though they were creating a "Marsellaise" and not simply repeating it.

Czech music, whether it be the marching song among the box cars, or the violin solo in the Red Cross car among the wounded, is like that.

English Customs in Egypt.

Egypt, notes a correspondent, is enthusiastic for English customs. In the case of visiting cards they are leaving us far behind.

I have one before me with the name in the center written in Latin and Arabic characters, and the address below.

In the right hand corner in gilt letters is the Spanish greeting "Felicitades," and in the opposite corner a gilt anchor and chain wreathed with pale blue forget-me-nots. The whole card is bordered with lotuses.

Another Egyptian uses quite an English card, with the letters "P. T. O." neatly printed in the lower right hand corner. On turning the card over one is advised to "Keep smiling."—London Chronicle.

United States Goods in Belgium.

Belgium, with a population of 7,658,000, ranks fifth among the nations of the world as a market for United States exports, being surpassed only by the United Kingdom, France, Canada and Italy in the value of products purchased from this country during the first nine months of 1919.

Not a Bad Description.

I sent my little daughter, Anna, to the market for a pound of Frankfurt sausage. She played on the way and forgot the name. After the butcher asked her what kind of sausage she wanted she said: "O, you know; the kind that used a hot bath before you can eat them." Needless to say, she brought the right kind home after every one in the market had a good laugh.—Chicago Tribune.

Good for the Whole Family

"Granny" Chamberlain "A good cough remedy is one that can be depended upon to cure coughs. Not one that cures some particular cough, but coughs in general."

It must be a cough remedy that can be relied upon for all the different coughs that are so prevalent. While the causes of all coughs are primarily the same, yet the condition of the patient is what makes the difference in the nature of the cough itself. Coughs of healthy persons are easier to cure than the coughs of invalids. The powerful convulsive cough of a large man is harder to cure than the cough of a baby. If you get a remedy that will cure a large man's cough and yet not be too powerful for the baby, you have a good cough remedy.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

is just this kind of remedy. It is good for any member of the family. It relieves coughs of all kinds. It is the product of much thought and study to produce an ideal cough remedy. It is composed of things which cure easily and soothingly without harming the most delicate tissues of the throat. It acts as easily and safely on the young as on the old, and is the ideal remedy for coughs, colds, croup, influenza, whooping cough and bronchitis."

Yours for Health —Granny Chamberlain

Old Hanson's Early Ambitions.

In the World's Work Ole Hanson thus relates the unique circumstances of his first night at Seattle: "When I came to Seattle in 1902, I pitched my tent on Beacon hill, a close-in, nonsectarian part of the city. The first night I arrived I stood on the hill and saw the child-city spread out before me. Below me to the west were the tide lands covered with buttruses, with an occasional street on stilts running over them; to the north was the city abaze with light with small buildings, narrow streets, a station house for a depot and hills and hills, covered with forests."

"Around the fire that night I told the curious who had gathered to watch the strangers that we had come to Seattle to make it our home, to be a part of its growth, and that some day I would be its mayor. Of course, they laughed at the idea of the red-headed stranger with his team and covered wagon becoming the mayor of their city of 100,000 people."

Derivation of "Hoodlum."

Hoodlum now means a young, rough rodney. The term is derived from a gang of toughs in San Francisco, under the leadership of one Muldoon. They were called for the name of their leader, the syllables of whose name, out of contempt, were reversed and slightly modified. Instead of Muldoons they were called Hoodlums.

FOUND "MISSING HEIR" IN JAIL

Long Search of United States Naval Authorities Comes to an End.

WAS HELD AS FORGER

Eighteen-Year-Old Youth Boasts of Shrewd Trick Which, as He Said, "Fooled Them All for Awhile."

Green Bay, Wis.—In the state reformatory a pesty-faced, hollow-cheeked lad of eighteen paces back and forth in his cell. He is ashamed to look his countrymen in the face because he is a deserter from the United States navy. His name is Adolph Gerds, alias Daniel H. Tolman.

He is the boy who tricked the authorities at the Great Lakes Naval Training station into believing he was the missing heir to the $4,000,000 estate of the late Daniel H. Tolman of Philadelphia.

The whereabouts of this youth, who had played tag with military and police officials throughout the United States for seven months, did not become known until a short time ago. Then it was his tongue that told his whereabouts to the world.

Confides in Cellmates.

"Yep, I'm the bird you read about in the papers," he had told his cellmates. "I almost had them believing that I was the missing heir to an estate of $4,000,000 left by a loan shark in Philadelphia named Tolman. But keep it quiet."

But his mates couldn't let the story rest. The guard heard it. From the lad he forced a confession. Then authorities at the reformatory communicated with the Great Lakes Naval Training station. Naval and civil intelligence officers were sent to the institution. Then the identity was established.

Prisoner's Story.

He told the officers the following story: "I admit that I made a botch job of it at the finish, but you'll have to give me credit for fooling them for a while."

"The whole thing started in Milwaukee. I didn't have a dime in my pocket and my clothes were almost in rags. My poor old mother, who lives at 1458 Spring street, was just about living, and even though I tried hard, I couldn't help her along."

"One day a fellow stopped me on the street and told me I resembled the missing heir to a fortune. He said the heir's name was Tolman. We talked it over, schemed and planned and before

"Yep, I'm the Bird You Read About."

elston. I had a good story cooked up and upon the advice of this newly made acquaintance I decided to join the navy.

Says Station Was "Easy."

"At Great Lakes they fell for my story. They gave me a ten-day furlough so I could go to Philadelphia and claim the fortune."

"At the end of my furlough I came back and got an extension. Then I cashed a bogus check at the station for $180. After that I threw away my uniform and forged checks in Buffalo, New York city, Washington, Detroit, and Cleveland. It was in Cleveland that they got me, for a bad check in Milwaukee."

"I was tried, convicted and here I am."

PREFERS DEATH TO PARTING

Facing Separation, Ohio Woman Kills Seven Children and Herself.

Nelsonville, O.—Several hours before authorities were to remove them to the Athens county home seven children, ranging in age from six weeks to ten years, were found with their mother, Mrs. Tony Stavlar, burned to death or asphyxiated in their home at Kimberly, a small mining town near here.

The children were tied to their beds and coal oil had been sprinkled over the room.

It is supposed that worry over the separation caused the mother to destroy herself and the children.

Little Oregon Quarterback Desperately Trying to Overcome Harvard's One Point Lead

This photograph, the first received in the east of the Harvard-Oregon football game played on New Year's Day at Pasadena, Calif., shows one of the most exciting plays in the second period in which all the scoring was done. With the score Harvard 7, Oregon 6, "Skeeter" Manerude, the Oregon quarterback, repeatedly tried to carry the ball around the ends. Manerude, who weighs only 120 pounds, is seen here stiff arming Desmond, Harvard's 204-pound left end. Manerude had previously kicked Oregon's second field goal.

HAS ONLY MEMORY

Old Minstrel Sadly Recalls Days of Affluence.

Years Ago the Pet of Royalty, and Earning Thousands, Today Merely Regarded as an "Old Colored Man."

Leaning against the side of a moving picture theater on Broadway, a crippled old man, with white hair and deep lines in his face, stood the other day, bearing little resemblance to the man who was once the sensation of the English amusement world, the pet of royalty, and a maker of money in such quantities that it was said of him he only sipped the bubbles off champagne, leaving the drink itself to hangers-on.

Not a handful of people know of his former glory. To the passerby today he seemed simply an old "colored man."

But to the Old Timer recognition was immediate. He was, none other than George Bohee, who, with his brother, Jim Bohee, was a feature of Jack Haverly's Colored Minstrel troupe in this country 40 years ago and who in the early eighties took England off its feet with the introduction of negro minstrelsy, banjo playing and soft-shoe dancing there.

The story of George Bohee is more timely now because of the recent visit of the prince of Wales. For when the present prince's grandfather, the late King Edward, visited this country as prince of Wales, banjo playing was his hobby, and he later took lessons from the Bohee brothers, and often commanded them to appear at royal entertainments.

George and Jim Bohee were mulattoes. They were splendid singers and clever dancers. They always appeared together in silk costumes of gay colors, high silk hats, and with banjos hung over their shoulders. They were for years with Haverly's minstrels. In 1880 they decided to go to England, little hoping for any wonderful success there, but desiring to see the world and to try their luck.

"I was in England at the period," says the Old Timer. "The success of the Bohee brothers was instantaneous. It was remarkable. The soft-shoe dancing and banjo playing took England by storm. It became the rage, just as the jazz is the rage here now. They were wooed by the big music halls and played a string of them every night, going from one to another."

"King Edward, who was then prince of Wales, always had a hobby for the banjo. Nobody had ever played it in England as the Bohee brothers did and he summoned them early in their career there to play for him. The Bohees appeared at royal parties given by him and by the duke of Richmond and to Queen Alexandra."

"I remember that one of the Bohee's great songs in those days was 'A Boy's Best Friend Is His Mother.' Sounds shushy now, but it was a great hit in the eighties. Well, the Bohee brothers certainly were the class. They drove down Piccadilly, tandem, with an attendant in livery that would knock your eye out."

"When Jim Bohee came into the Gaiety or Criterion bar he would order champagne and never drink anything but the bubbles. That's a fact; he would simply drink the effervescent top and let the greater part of the wine remain in the glass."

"I remember one day meeting Jim in the Criterion and reminding him of an incident when he was with Haverly's minstrels. It happened in Kalamazoo, Mich. Jim was leading the parade in a startling costume, carrying a huge drum-major's stick which he was whirling and twirling like mad."

"A frisky young colt was tied to a post, and when the parade came down with bands going full pressure and with Jim cutting high jinks in front, the colt reared up on its hind legs and fell over dead. That's a fact.

"Well I asked Jim if he recalled that and he let out a roar of laughter that amazed those present. Jim had cultivated an English accent and eliminated anything approaching the boisterous laugh or expression. Consequently when he lapsed into an ordinary whoop it caused a stir, and he apologized."

"All this came to my mind the other day when I happened to see George Bohee, a ghost of his old self. He made hundreds of thousands of dollars in his day. I think he makes a living now working around movie houses. I stopped to talk with him and I recalled the days of forgotten glory. 'Those were the days,' he said sadly. 'I forgot to say that the fall of the Bohees began with the death of Jim. Jim died just about the time their popularity began to decline, and George couldn't revive the old-time admiration of the amusement world.'"

Money Cannot Buy Any Better
E. D. Grappe, a leading merchant of St. Maurice, La., writes: "For a cathartic I especially recommend Foley Cathartic Tablets, knowing as I do that money cannot buy any better." They act promptly, without pain or nausea. They clear the bowels, sweeten the stomach and tone up the liver. Not habit forming. H. P. Dunn.

Newspaper Printed in 1783.

A rare copy of a newspaper has come into the possession of the Columbia university library. Dr. Carpenter, acting librarian, announced, in the purchase of a copy of the Pennsylvania Packet and Daily Advertiser for April 14, 1788, from W. F. Smith of Philadelphia. The paper, which was published by John Dunlap and David C. Claypool in Philadelphia, is four pages in size, contains about two columns of news and the balance is filled by commercial advertising. Of particular interest is a brief account of the Columbia college commencement of 1788. The first name on the list of candidates awarded the master of arts degree is Alexander Hamilton, and De Witt Clinton holds the same position among the receivers of bachelor of arts diplomas.

Covered Them All.

At Leicester, England, there is an inn upon the wall of which years ago a pastor wrote: "I pray for all." The village lawyer, seeing in this a means for free advertising, wrote underneath: "I plead for all." One day a farmer thought he was justified in adding: "I feed all," and an army officer passing through the village left: "I fight for all." But an unknown author added the last line by writing: "I take them all—the devil." The host, not wishing to show any partiality, has hung out his sign: "The House of All Five."

The powerful political organization "Tammany" was named after the Indian chief "Tamanand" of the Delaware tribe, who was famous for his virtues and wisdom. The Tammany society was founded in New York city May 12, 1782, and became identified with the Republican, now the Democratic party.

BEGIN HOT WATER DRINKING IF YOU DON'T FEEL RIGHT

Says glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast washes out poisons.

If you wake up with a bad taste, bad breath and tongue is coated; if your head is dull or aching; if what you eat sours and forms gas and acid in stomach, or you are bilious, constipated, nervous, sallow and can't get feeling just right, begin inside bathing. Drink before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will flush the poisons and toxins from stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels and cleanse, sweeten and purify the entire alimentary tract. Do your inside bathing immediately upon arising in the morning to wash out of the system all the previous day's poisonous waste, gases and sour bile before putting more food into the stomach.

To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood, nerves and muscles became loaded with body impurities, get from your pharmacist a quarter pound of limestone phosphate which is inexpensive and almost tasteless, except for a sourish twinge which is not unpleasant.

Just as soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and freshening, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Men and women who are usually constipated, bilious, headachy or have any stomach disorder should begin this inside bathing before breakfast. They are assured they will become real cranks on the subject shortly.

Taking the Chase Out Of Purchase

Advertising benefits the man who buys as well as the man who sells. It is part of the Golden Rule of Business and it works both ways.

Don't miss the advertisements in this newspaper. Many of them are interesting just because of their news and educational value alone.

But more than that:—Advertisements take the chase out of purchase and make every penny do its full duty.

This last statement is one particularly to be remembered when common-sense economy is not only a national duty, but an individual necessity.

DON'T MISS THE ADVERTISEMENTS.
